- Different approaches by civil society to influence security governance.
- How to adjust priorities to a security, conflict and political context.
- Similarities and distinctive features of key security providers (e.g. police, armed forces, intelligence, border management, justice, penitentiary administration...).
- Confronting crime and other security threats in compliance with human rights standards and democratic principles.
- Security as experienced by different groups: women, youth.
- What are the organisational strategies and tools for the influence of security sector reform and especially for the accountability of security institutions?

What do we offer?

- Live sessions with experienced practitioners.
- Case studies of real-life strategies and impact made by civil society organisations
- Practical exercises.
- Peer exchange among practitioners working in similar contexts.
- Networking opportunities.

8 people will be selected for a practical face-to-face experience in Buenos Aires. Scholarships are available for a limited number of participants, including travel costs.

The selection of the participants will be made by the Training Course on the Oversight of the Security Sector's director Sonja Stojanović Gajić and the RESDAL team. We strive to select a diverse group in terms of organizations, policy areas, demographics, and gender balance.

This program is funded by the National Endowment for Democracy (NED).
